Anniversary Tea & Auction

Our Spring Tea and Annual Book Sale & Auction are on Saturday, March 29 at 1:00 p.m. There will be lots of time for silent bidding and live auctioning—for your own benefit and the Club’s—and tea and food (please bring some, if you can!) and yakking, and celebrating our 28th (!) anniversary!!

The location is PFL David & Terri’s home in Gig Harbor!

If you have donations to make to the Sale & Auction, please get them to the March 10 Meeting or make arrangements to get them to Haugens’ before the 29th so they can be priced and catalogued in advance!! Food items are a very popular auction item too, so think outside the box!!

Driving Directions to David & Terri Haugen’s Home:

Drive 1-5 to Tacoma. Take Exit #132—“Highway 16” westbound. Drive west 12 miles (across the Tacoma Narrows Bridge) to the “Gig Harbor City Center” exit (Pioneer)—it’s the exit after Olympic Drive. At the light at the top of the exit ramp, turn right onto Pioneer and drive north (down the hill) into town where it T’s with Harborview Drive (3-way stop). Turn left onto Harborview Drive and follow it around the Harbor (keep bearing right). When you come to another 3-way stop, take the free right turn onto North Harborview Drive. Follow this along the water until you’re on the northwest side of the Harbor. Watch for Finholm’s Market on your left and Anthony’s Restaurant on your right. Take the first left turn after Finholm’s Market (there’s a left-turn-lane), onto Peacock Hill Avenue N.W. and climb up the hill. When you get to the flat (top) of the hill, watch on your right for 101st Street...then 102nd Street...then HarborCrest Court. You’ll see a red brick entryway and gate. Turn right! Go half way down the hill, to the second cul-de-sac on your right. Haugens’ is the first unit on the left: 3606 HarborCrest Court N.W. The phone is (253) 853-5187.

Old News, But Still of Interest

The Evening Standard (London) January 26, 2006 Thursday

It’s one for Sherlock Holmes and Watson. The Reform Club on Pall Mall, of which Sherlock Holmes creator Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was a member, has suffered an outbreak of larceny. The most recent issue of the club’s in-house magazine, the Reform Review, carries a letter from editor Chris Underwood warning members of a spate of thefts in the club.

"There has been a thief about," Underwood begins ominously. He goes on to say that four Burberry raincoats have been stolen from the cloakroom in a short space of time and that "the matter is in the hands of the police". The management is now looking at CCTV footage in an attempt to snaffle the thief. "Such goings-on do not enhance the reputation of the club," adds Underwood.

The club—whose current members include Lord Roy Hattersley, Labour Party politician, published author and journalist; and Sir Peter Stothard, former editor of The Times—is loath to talk about the affair. "I've got no comment to make on this," the club's secretary tells me when I ring.

The Reform is no stranger to scandal—in 1980, Paula Yates posed nude in the club's smoking room for Playboy, and in 2000 the controversial historian and Holocaust revisionist David Irving was banned from the club in a ruling that divided members.

It is also not the first time the club has fallen to芜ous of a thief. In 1976, a unidentified individual set about plundering the Club's 40,000-volume library.

So the real surprise, perhaps, is not that Reform harbours a light-fingered scallywag, but that so many members of such a venerable and bookish establishment wear anything as naff as a Burberry raincoat.

(Translation from Wikipedia.org: “Naff” means something seen to be particularly "cheesy", "tacky" or in otherwise poor aesthetic taste.)
The Illustrious Client is the Story for March Meeting

The March 10 Meeting of The Sound of the Baskervilles will begin at 6:00 p.m. at T.S. McHugh’s Public House, 21 Mercer Street, Seattle, (206) 282-1910. Come early to order dinner and catch up with other SOBs! Many arrive as early as 5:00.

Having had what we hope was a restful summer, it’s been two full months since Holmes & Watson’s last case (LADY), as this one occurs in early September 1902. Says PFL David:

We can understand why Doyle was not particularly fond of this Adventure! It’s devoid of those characteristics of Holmes that so endear him to us all: his deductive faculty, his clever disguises, his keen perception. On the bright side, Watson’s description of the seamy London underworld leaves us to assume that the good Doctor had little or no experience with that aspect of society—for they have no place in our concept of the cozy world of 1895, or 1902, where men were either heroes or villains, and ladies were demure and virtuous.

But don’t miss out on this good yarn...it’s an interesting trip nonetheless!

The 2008 Edgar® Award Nominees Are...

In late January, the Mystery Writers of America announced its nominees for the 2008 Edgar Allan Poe Awards, honoring the best in mystery fiction, non-fiction, television and film published or produced in 2007. Here’s a partial list of nominees:

BEST NOVEL
- Christine Falls by Benjamin Black (Henry Holt and Company)
- Priest by Ken Bruen (St. Martin’s Minotaur)
- The Yiddish Policemen’s Union by Michael Chabon (HarperCollins)
- Soul Patch by Reed Farrel Coleman (Black House Books)
- Down River by John Hart (St. Martin’s Minotaur)

BEST CRITICAL/BIOGRAPHICAL
- The Triumph of the Thriller: How Cops, Crooks and Cannibals Captured Popular Fiction by Patrick Anderson (Random House)
- A Counter-History of Crime Fiction: Supernatural, Gothic, Sensational by Maurizio Ascari (Palgrave Macmillan)
- Deviance in Contemporary Crime Fiction by Christiana Gregoriou (Palgrave Macmillan)
- Chester Gould: A Daughter’s Biography of the Creator of Dick Tracy by Jean Gould O’Connell (McFarland & Company)

BEST TELEVISION EPISODE TELEPLAY
- "It’s Alive" – Dexter by Daniel Cerone (Showtime)
- "Yahrzeit" – Waking the Dead by Declan Croghan & Barbara Machin (BBC America)
- "Pie-Lette" – Pushing Daisies by Bryan Fuller (ABC/Warner Bros. Television)
- "Senseless" – Law & Order: Criminal Intent by Julie Martin & Siobhan Byrne O’Connor (Wolf Films/NBC Universal)
- "Pilot" – Burn Notice by Matt Nix (USA Network/Fox Television Studios)

BEST MOTION PICTURE SCREENPLAY
- Eastern Promises by Steven Knight (Focus Features)
- The Lookout by Scott Frank (Miramax)
- Michael Clayton by Tony Gilroy (Warner Bros.)
- No Country for Old Men by Joel Coen & Ethan Coen, based on the book by Cormac McCarthy (Miramax)
- Zodiac by James Vanderbilt, based on the book by Robert Graysmith (Warner Bros.)

"Both Holmes and I had a weakness for the Turkish bath... On the upper floor of the Northumberland Avenue establishment there is an isolated corner where two couches lie side by side, and it was on these that we lay upon September 3, 1902, the day when my narrative begins."

Interesting Items About ILLU:
- While never named, the Illustrious Client is generally assumed to have been Edward VII, Queen Victoria’s eldest son and King from 1901 to 1910.
- The Splugun Pass, where avalanches are indeed common, connects the Rhine Valley with the Valley of Lombardy. Its altitude is 9,350 feet.
- The phrase “tinker’s curse”, used by Kitty Winter, is sometimes given as “tinker’s damn”, which is to say something not worth very much, as tinkers were looked down on as itinerant peddlers.

Update on “The Best of...Beaten’s”

The book we are publishing—containing “The Best of…” the first 24 years of our Beaten’s Christmas Annual—is nearing completion!! The printer is securing an ISBN for it, then we’ll be able to finalize the content and submit it for printing!!

Winston Churchill Didn't Really Exist, Say Teens

Telegraph.co.uk, Feb 4, 2008

A fifth of British teenagers believe Sir Winston Churchill was a fictional character, while many think Sherlock Holmes and King Arthur were real, a survey shows.

The canvass of 3,000 under-twenties uncovered an extraordinary paucity of basic historical knowledge that older generations take for granted. Despite his celebrated military reputation, 47 percent of respondents dismissed the 12th-century crusading king Richard the Lionheart as fictional. More than a quarter (27 percent) thought Florence Nightingale, the pioneering nurse who coaxed injured soldiers back to health in the Crimean War, was a mythical figure.

In contrast, a series of fictitious characters that have featured in British films and literature over the past few centuries were awarded real-life status. King Arthur is the mythical figure most commonly mistaken for fact—almost two-thirds of teens (65 percent) believe he led a round table of knights at Camelot.

Sherlock Holmes, the detective, was so convincingly brought to life in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's novels, their film versions and television series that 58 percent of respondents believe that the sleuth really lived at 221B Baker Street. Fifty-one percent of respondents believed that Robin Hood lived in Sherwood Forest, robbing the rich to give to the poor, while 47 percent believed Eleanor Rigby was a real person rather than a creation of The Beatles.

The study also shows a marked change in how people acquire their historical knowledge these days. More than three-quarters of those polled (77 percent) admitted they did not read history books, and 61 percent said that they changed channels rather than watch historical programmes on television.

UKTV Gold, which commissioned the poll, said that while there was no excuse for demoting real historical figures such as Churchill, the elevation of mythical figures to real life showed the impact good films could have in shaping the public consciousness. "Stories like Robin Hood are so inspiring that it's not surprising people like to believe these characters truly existed," they said.

Things to See, Buy, Do & Know

- Thanks to SOB Margie Deck for this: You probably have most of these, but just in case,... (from a Sherlockian I much admire in England):

  - "A Remarkable Mixture" ($35.00 + $3.95 postage, Baker Street Journal) is an anthology of the writings which won the Morley-Montgomery Award (for writings in the journal) from 1958-2006.
  - David Hammer's latest collection of articles and talks—"You Know My Methods, Watson" (The Battered Silicon Dispatch Box, $20CDN plus postage)—gets a thumbs up from Roger Johnson.
  - Thanks to SOB Karen Murdock for this: Peter Blau reminds us...that next year is the 150th anniversary of the birth of the "literary agent" Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
  - “Top 10 Episodes”
    - Where Entertainment Weekly reviewer Ken Tucker had previously (Nov. 23, 2007) bashed “House”, saying it "shows symptoms of strain". EW writer Benjamin Svetkey cited (Dec. 21, 2007) the April 10, 2007 episode (“Airborne”) as his favorite show of the year. "It...dispensed some of the most subversive humor on the air. And it got even better when the show broke out of form, with the cranky doc making a House call on a flight from Singapore, prepping for surgery with just three plastic spoons and alcohol wipes. House came up with a lifesaving diagnosis at the last minute...and yet it all felt brand-new,”
    - Said Svetkey.

- Bill reported that Who Framed Boris Karloff by Dwight Kemper and Frank Dietz is now out in paperback. It got a 4-star rating from 7 reviewers at Amazon.com!
- Marge Nelson passed around Oscar Wilde: A Death of No Importance. From the back cover it sounded interesting but she found herself reading it quickly just to get through it. Don concurred, saying that he didn’t especially dislike it but suggests it as a good way to take your mind off politics.
- Don passed out a Seattle PI article from January 22 that told of the closing of Andy’s Diner, after the landlord sold the underlying property and canceled Andy’s lease. While the article reported on the 50-year-old restaurant’s place in Seattle history, it oddly said not a word about the many years the SOBs held their monthly meetings and annual Master’s Dinners there!! Moriarty’s influence, no doubt!!
