Time’s UP!!
Everyone was eligible to enter our 2018 Writing Contest, but your time is now UP!

SOB LAURAN STEVENS challenge:

IMAGINE: Of all the Sherlock Holmes stories written by Conan Doyle, there is bound to be at least one that you did not like the ending of, right?

Decide which story—or stories—you would have liked to have a different or better ending. Explain what you would have had happen instead—to make it a more satisfying ending for you! Multiple entries are permitted!!

There’s no need to rewrite the original story’s ending; just explain how you would have liked the story to end. Bring your entry to the November meeting or snail-mail it by November 30 to Lauran at: 320 West Roy Street, Apt. 207, Seattle, WA 98119.

THE GAME IS AFOOT!

Newer Members!
Now is a good time to choose your Canonical Name—an alter-ego, a person, place or thing from Sherlockiana with which you’d like to be identified!

Generally, you may be any person, place or thing in the Canon which is not already used by another Member.

There are but four exceptions to this rule: No one may be “Sherlock Holmes”, “Dr. John Watson”, “Prof. James Moriarty”, or “Irene Adler”. But, if these four people are referred to by some other name, you can use it. For example, we have a Member who has been “Sigerson” for years. That’s the alias Holmes used when he traveled after Reichenbach Falls, during the Great Hiatus. The name “Sigerson” is fine because it is not actually the name “Sherlock” nor the name “Holmes”.

Don’t know if your choice of a person, place or thing is already taken? Phone or email Editor Terri (see masthead on the last page) to find out in advance if your choice of alter-ego has already been taken.

Ineffable Twaddle
“It is my business to know what other people don’t know.”
—The Adventure of the Blue Carbuncle
"A Scandal in Bohemia" Served Two Ways

The Regular Monthly Meeting of The Sound of the Baskervilles will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, November 18, 2018 at the Seattle Public Library (Queen Anne Branch) at 400 West Garfield, Seattle (driving directions at left). This is a two-part program!!

Part 1 is our study of SCAN. Says our Program Chair Sunny Even: Who is Irene Adler really? For most of the story, we only see her through others’ eyes. Dr. Watson seems of mixed minds. He names her “the late Irene Adler, of dubious and questionable memory.” However, upon seeing her beauty, “… never felt more heartily ashamed of myself in my life than when I saw the beautiful creature against whom I was conspiring.” The King of Bohemia classifies her “an adventuress”, a genteel term for a high-class prostitute, only to exclaim (several times!) what a magnificent queen she would have made him. While Watson and the King are alternately captivated and censuring in their descriptions, Holmes apparently makes no judgement. Even while he takes note of her exceptional beauty, he describes the entire wedding escapade with no comment as to her character or her motivations. And in the end he seems to take a small pleasure in having been bested by her. It is to Holmes’ credit that, she is simply the woman. No more, while being no less.

Adler doesn’t speak for herself until the last few pages of A Scandal in Bohemia. Yet that stealthy statement she makes illustrates an impudence and independence unseen from the story’s male viewpoint. In that brief encounter she shows herself a person apart from Holmes’ intellect, or Watson’s idealism, or the King’s belligerence. By her own words, “I love and am loved by a better man than he.” As Sherlockian James Edward Holroyd said, “One may fairly claim that the only dubious and questionable aspect of the adventure was the conduct of the three men principally concerned.”

Part 2 is SOB Sheldon Gloger’s presentation, titled “Irene Never Wanted to Marry Wilhelm”, which he summarizes as follows:

What the King of Bohemia told Holmes & Watson (about Irene Adler) was a lie: “Rather than I should marry another woman, there are no lengths to which she would not go—none.” Totally untrue. Ineffable Twaddle. A wedding was never an issue.

Thank you for letting me present this point of view at our November 18th gathering at the Queen Anne Library, whose scheduled story is, A Scandal in Bohemia. What scares me, though, is that my perusal of the literature has not found support for my challenge to the King’s claim.

So who am I, a novice at Sherlockian research, to come up with something original about the disputed photograph? My hope is that the best SOB minds will show up at the meeting to either find flaws in my reasoning or encourage me to publish my findings.

I will expose the King’s lie in depth with eight historical truths: (1) royalty only married royalty; (2) a mistress-courtesan was the alternative to marriage with a commoner; (3) La Scala’s associated gambling casino was where royalty met and wooed opera performers; (4) England and Germany recruited both royalty and commoners for espionage; and ….my 5, 6, 7 and 8 truths have to do with rising nationalism.

To test your mettle on this story, SOB Charlie Cook has produced the following quiz on “A Scandal in Bohemia”:

1. How did Holmes speak of the “softer passions”?
2. The now-married Watson read of 3 cases which Holmes had solved. Name them.
3. Watson didn’t know how many steps led from the hall to Holmes’s room. Do you?
4. About what does Holmes claim Germans are so uncourteous?
5. What alias did the King of Bohemia use when he first visited 221B?
6. What was Irene Adler’s London address?
7. Whom did Irene Adler marry?
8. What was the name of the church where her wedding ceremony took place?
9. It wasn’t Mrs. Hudson serving dinner at 221B. Who was it?
10. What disguise did Holmes take on when he went to trick Irene Adler?
11. Holmes claimed to have used similar tricks in which two other cases?
12. What did Irene—whilst disguised as young lad—say to Holmes upon his return to 221B?

  ● THIS PRESS RELEASE CAME IN AT OUR WEBSITE FROM AUTHOR THOMAS BRUCE WHEELER: “You may want to take a look at the http://www.SherlocksLondon.com website. It contains an interactive map that identifies over 400 places in London associated with the great detective, explains their Sherlockian significance and identifies in which adventure(s) they were mentioned. Currently, the map has been accessed over 300,000 times by visitors from all over the world.” For more, contact Wheeler at londonsecrets@europe.com

  ● FOUND A PLETHORA OF SHERLOCKIAN NEWS AT “GOOGLE ALERTS” ON OCTOBER 26.
    ★ The Seattle Times reported: A new thriller to rival John le Carré is Henry Porter’s Firefly, and a new take on Sherlock Holmes from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar with his second book, Mycroft and Sherlock are now out.
    ★ The Waterville (ME) Public Library was hosting quite the mystery for folks to solve on October 27: The 3rd annual “Nosh and Knock Off” is an interactive mystery event at which attendees try to catch a suspect with their favorite literary characters. Characters this year included Jay Gatsby, Sherlock Holmes, and Katniss Everdeen.

  ● STARTING SEPTEMBER 1, AUDIENCES WERE ABLE TO VIEW THE NEWEST INTERNATIONAL HBO SERIES. Co-produced with Hulu in Japan, Miss Sherlock is also the first Japanese series to premiere on the network. The series is a reimagining of the classic Sherlock Holmes stories. Set in present day Tokyo, the series focuses on a gender-bent take on the mythos by casting Yuko Takeuchi (Flashforward) and Shiori Kabijiyama (Kuchizuke) as Sherlock and Dr. Watson—now Dr. Wato Tachibana. Yukiyoshi Ozawa (The Forest), who plays Sherlock’s elder brother Kendo (a stand-in for Mycroft Holmes), spoke with The Hollywood Reporter about his role. “I’m not trying to offend any guys, but some types of guys think very square,” said Ozawa. “Women are more sensitive and know how to touch people’s hearts, so they know how to win the game. I think they make better private detectives.” Naturally, the two women spark up a friendship and partnership as they investigate the crimes no one else can solve. Like other recent takes on the premise (like Sherlock and Elementary), this new approach showcases the flexibility of the concept. A trailer was released in August that showcased Takeuchi especially, as she tries to investigate a case where people are dropping dead from bombs in their stomachs.

Here’s an item PFL David received at his SOB email inbox:

Hello,

My daughter and I just wanted to reach out to give a big thanks for your wonderful page, http://www.soundofthebaskervilles.com/links.html since it’s been extremely helpful to her! She just recently finished up her Victorian Era project for her history class. She’s been pretty stressed over this project but thanks to you she seemed confident and excited about it this morning before school.

To better show our appreciation she thought it would be nice to pay it forward and recommend another page she found useful. It’s https://www.fragrancex.com/fragrance-information/fashion-and-courtship-in-the-victorian-era.html and it has great information and resources on it about the fashion and courtship in the Victorian Era with many great resources on it.

If you decide to add it to your resources, I’d love to show my daughter that her suggestion was up and running to help others out! It would also make her feel that she contributed positively to the lives of others.

Best Wishes, Abigail & Ellie Lynwood

Tennessee SOB Bill Mason has a New Book Out!

My latest book, A Holmes By Any Other Name: The Twisting and Turnings of “Sherlock Holmes”, is now available from Wildside Press.

When Arthur Conan Doyle finally decided on a name for the greatest detective in history, he could not have envisioned just how perfect “Sherlock Holmes” would be for parody, for rhyme, for the transposing of letters and sounds, for the substitution of suggestive words in the name of a comic character: Beerlock Foams, Cockroach Bones, Heddlock Phones, Herlock Sholmes, Mukluk Gnomes, Picklock Holes, Sheerluck Hums, Shellshock Sloan, Shirley Combs, Smallpox Soles...and hundreds more!

This is not just a list, but also a catalogue of 578 parody names derived from a true phonetic gold mine: the name Sherlock Holmes. Many are unique, the exclusive product of a single creative mind. Others are found frequently, although they were most likely continually reinvented rather than copied. All are credited to their creators and referenced to their first appearance. Also included are lists of parody names for Watson and Moriarty and a full index...

These appellations are gleaned from a multitude of sources. The “twistings and mis-shapenings” of the name Sherlock Holmes can be found almost everywhere: novels, short stories, jokes, cartoons, comics, movies, plays, puppet shows, radio and television programs, the internet, newspapers, magazines, video games, jewelry, toys, music, and even supermarket fliers. All are represented in this listing.

An Analysis by SOB Charlie Cook:

On the Essay, “Pastiche: The Third Leg of the Sherlockian Stool” by David Marcum

Many Sherlockians are familiar with David Marcum’s MX series of Sherlock Holmes pastiches, but he also includes a few essays in each volume.

This one is provided in Volumes IX and X.

The three legs of the stool are: 1) The Canon, 2) Sherlockian scholarship and 3) pastiches. Quoting Edgar W. Smith, “The pastiche writer must be competent, adept and efficient.” Mr. Marcum then follows by adding “the writer must also be receptive”, willing to present fresh adventures and not dwell too much on the original ones.

He also notes that in his opinion the importance of the pastiche is that, for many, it may be their first introduction to the World of Sherlock Holmes—be it a story, a film, a TV show, or a radio program. Marcum calls the body of work, “Canon and pastiche, ‘The Great Holmes Tapestry’.”

A history of parodies and pastiches is presented, loaded with interesting and informative entries which should impress most Sherlockians. After including a plethora of data on early silent and talkie films, parodies and pastiches, highlighting the post-Canon Golden Age through the 1940’s and then flowing into the new Golden Age which began with Nicholas Meyer’s The Seven Percent Solution and which has continued to the present day. Gem after gem of history and trivia leaves the enthusiast drooling.

For example: Anyone fortunate enough to have a copy of Edgar W. Smith’s “amazing collection of Holmesian essays”, Profiles By Gaslight (which I do) should note that following page 220 is page 221B and followed by page 222. ...

Learn about English dinners at the Time of Sherlock Holmes via One at Downton Abbey

[Image of people dressed in period clothing]

Learn about Victorian/Edwardian dining (as in the time of Sherlock and Watson) at “Dining at Downton: A Trial by Fork”. This program by re-enactor Tames Alan is November 20, 2018 at 6:30 pm at the University Place Library, 3609 Market Place West, University Place, WA.

From her website: “Much of the plot for Downton Abbey revolves around the dinner table. Explore the final years of a time when one changed into dinner clothes and chose jewelry to reflect candlelight, where setting the table and serving a meal was an art. Any dinner at Downton Abbey is a well-choreographed dance performed with military precision. Everyone from the hostess and guests to the butler and kitchen maid, know the parts they are to play.

In this one-hour program, food historian Tames Alan demystifies the manners, menu, and accoutrements of a formal 12-course dinner as would have been eaten upstairs at Downton Abbey before the outbreak of World War One.”

A Pioneer Christmas: Traditions Across America

[Image of Christmas decorations]

Being held Saturday, December 15, 2018 at 1:00 pm at the Milton/Edgewood Library (900 Meridian East Milton, WA), this program explores the various traditional celebrations of the Christmas season as they might be found, across this country during the latter part of the 19th century.

Dressed in the authentic clothing of a pioneer woman and, using three differently decorated Christmas trees, your hostess Tames Alan compares and contrasts how the holiday was celebrated by an upper-middle-class family in an East Coast city, a homesteading community in the Midwest, and those who tried to keep their traditions alive out on the prairie.

Discussed are the significance of gifts, crèches, nutcrackers, and what was used to decorate the trees. Tames also talks about the perils of holiday travel and how food played a major part in the celebrations. When people gathered to celebrate the holiday, there would be music, dancing, and the singing of carols.

During this program, the audience will learn the history of and be encouraged to sing some traditional carols that were popular in this era.

Benedict Cumberbatch, known for his portrayal of crime-fighter Sherlock Holmes and comic book superhero Doctor Strange in the Marvel movies, has been hailed a hero for chasing away four assailants as they mugged a cyclist in London. ■ Cumberbatch, 41, jumped out of his taxi and ran to the aid of the man working for food delivery company Deliveroo as he was set upon by the muggers, the Sun reported. ■ “The cyclist was lucky, Benedict’s a superhero,” Cumberbatch’s Uber driver told the Sun. “Benedict was courageous, brave and selfless. If he hadn’t stepped in the cyclist could have been seriously injured.” ■ The attempted robbery took place on Marylebone High Street, just around the corner from Holmes’ fictional home on Baker Street.

⇒ From Editor Terri Haugen: This press release was received at my SOB email inbox: The Game’s Afoot: Sir Arthur Conan Doyle ranked “The Adventure of the Dancing Men” third in his list of his twelve favorite Holmes stories. Mr. Marcum does provide some critical analyses which the reader may agree or disagree with—all of them very entertaining.

He then takes the reader on his personal journey through the World of Sherlock Holmes. And a fascinating and entertaining trip it is! Many sources of stories are provided and the highlights of his travels left me and, I would think, every “collector” envious. It is with sadness that due to economic limitations and advancing age, I’ll never get to enjoy many of the entries the author has brought to my attention.

There exists a coda in the essay devoted to the collection of the current volume and kudos to the many people who helped the author with both his Sherlockian development and his monumental MX Book of New Sherlock Holmes collection.
